THOMAS DENIED ANOTHER TRIAL.

Supreme Court Decision Comments on High Finance.

(Special despatch to The News.)

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 31. In the supreme court this morning Justice Sweetland handed down a decision denying the defendant a new trial in the case of the National Bank of North America of New York vs. Edward R. Thomas of Newport. The case is one in which the bank tried to realize on a loan of $5,000 made to Mr. Thomas. Charles W. Morse was the king, who is now in the federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., was president of the bank when the loan was made, and it is said a warrant is out for his arrest. The bank later passed an attachment on

LATEST NAVAL NEWS.

Orders to Officers and Movements of Vessels Reported.

(Special despatch to The News.)

Midshipman [illegible] Chief Machinist [illegible] to the Louisiana and ordered to report to the commandant at the navy yard, New York.

Arrived: [illegible] Paul Jones, Pensacola at Charleston, S. C., and Mexico at Manila.

Sailed: [illegible] Chattanooga, [illegible] Saint Louis, [illegible] for Honolulu; Tacoma, from Chinkiang for Kiukiang; Wheeling, from Tientsin for Shanghai; Paducah, from Tientsin for Chinkiang; Yorktown, from Tientsin for Chinkiang; Vicksburg, from Hankow for Chinkiang; Helena, from Hankow for Chinkiang; Monocacy, from Hankow for Chinkiang.

ASSAULTED A BOSTON DOCTOR.

BOSTON, Jan. 31. In a case of great interest to a relative few in the local circle of citizens, and also on the well known conduct of officers of the navy and of a first Paymaster, George P. Auld and Dr. Amos H. Bridgett appeared before a court-martial at the navy yard today to answer to charges of an alleged assault on Dr. Edward S. Cowles of this city. Since the occurrence at a "hop" on Christmas Day December 21 last, at which the alleged assault is said to have taken place, it has been alleged that Dr. Cowles retired from the dance, the incident grew in importance, until Secretary of the Navy Meyer became interested and followed the proceedings with an order for the court-martial. Miss Dorothy Hooper of Cambridge became involved in the controversy by an interview in which she claimed that she was the innocent cause of the trouble. It was stated before the proceedings began today that both sides might leave their defense in the naval regulation which prohibits a court-martial or further inquiry after a public exposure.

The serious issue does not look serious. Dr. Cowles was at the dance as the guest of a naval officer. As an uninvited guest, the host in question was approached by Auld, who, as a member of the dance committee, ordered Dr. Cowles to leave the room, stating that his presence was not desired. This was followed by another incident outside the hall, in which it is said that Auld struck Mr. Cowles, and that Dr. Robert Bridgett, a brother of the defendant, who happened to be with Cowles, intervened in behalf of his friend and was also struck by Auld in his attack.

The incident has created considerable talk in local circles, and the parties are well known. Dr. Cowles is a friend of Rear Admiral Cowles, who is now at the head of Farragut Division at Newport.

The home that Auld had been provided for by his father and sister is said to be a very fine one, and it was stated at the opening of the proceedings by Major Henry Leonard, one of the counsel for Auld, before entering to consider the judgment, the court ordered all witnesses out of the court room, and it was stated by counsel Attorney R. Dexter, counsel for Dr. Cowles.

Among those present at the trial today was Joseph Auld, of Harrington, Vt., father of Paymaster Auld.

The court overruled the objection of Auld's counsel, and ordered that a [illegible] be held.

The first witness was Dr. Cowles. He testified to attending the dance at the navy yard on the night of December 21. He was told by Auld that he was a very old gentleman, and was requested to leave. Mr. Cowles remonstrated with him. As he was starting, he testified, Auld assaulted him.

Under cross-examination by Major Leonard, Dr. Cowles said that when Auld requested him to leave the dance the witness stated to his partner that he was objectionable to a Miss Amos, and Auld said that if he was, he would find later. Auld retorted the conversation concerning Miss Amos, and said that Dr. Cowles was objectionable to some other person.

PAYNTER, ILL, RESIGNS.

No Senator Found to Take His Place in Ballinger Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31. Senator Paynter of Kentucky, yesterday resigned from the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee. His place has been filled by appointment of Leader Money to fill a place on the committee left vacant by the death of Senator [illegible].

Explaining his action, Senator Paynter said: "[illegible] Ballinger-Pinchot controversy [illegible] Republican Party [illegible] Republican Committee [illegible] Kentucky [illegible] Democratic Party [illegible] Democratic Committee [illegible] Democratic Party [illegible] Democratic Committee [illegible] Democratic Party [illegible] Democratic Committee

CLARK'S NEW HOUSE RULES.

Minority Leader Offers Resolution to Amend, Simplify and Codify.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The many-angled fight in the House of Representatives over the question of revising the rules of that body took a new turn and assumed additional importance when Representative Champ Clark of Missouri, the leader of the minority, introduced a resolution just before the end of today's session providing for the election by the House of a new rules committee of 15 members. Special significance attaches to the Clark resolution because Mr. Clark is himself a member of the present rules committee. Provision is made in the resolution for revising, amend, simplify and codify the present rules of the House and report to the House at the earliest day practicable. The resolution contained nothing about the removal of Speaker Cannon from the committee, but the last section of it provides that the committee on rules appointed by the Speaker at the last session of the Sixty-first Congress shall no longer exercise the powers and functions of the rules committee.

The members of the present committee are Speaker Cannon, Representatives Dalzell, Smith of Iowa, Chas. of Missouri and Fitzgerald.

The Republican insurgents are expected to support the Clark resolution with one or two exceptions.

TOO MUCH OF THAT THING.

Ballinger Told Glavis Not to Pursue McLachlan Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Louis R. Glavis, Secretary Ballinger's chief accuser, declared today before the Congressional committee which is investigating the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy that Representative McLachlan of California and Kirkpatrick of Nebraska were interested in Alaska coal claims, and that Mr. Ballinger, then being chief of the Land Office, and as attorney for Mr. Kirkpatrick, asserted that Mr. Ballinger suggested to him not to pursue an investigation against Congressman McLachlan, saying there had been "too much of that sort of thing in the past."

When, toward the close of his testimony, Glavis was asked the direct question if he thought Secretary Ballinger and Commissioner of the Land Office Dennett were in league to do wrong in the Alaskan case, he replied: "Well, I thought the case would be better protected with them out of the way."

Glavis's story developed and showed in strong colors the hostility which had long existed between the Land Office and the Forestry Bureau, and the contempt the Land Office officials, when Glavis called in "the foresters" as it was termed.

Glavis's attack centered more directly today on Commissioner Dennett. He said he became convinced in the summer of 1909 that Dennett "was crooked," and took steps to secure copies of letters Dennett was writing back to Washington. Several of these were introduced in evidence.

SECURE LOWEST RATES.

President Issues Tariff Proclamation Naming Eight Countries.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The President today issued a proclamation in which it is declared that, inasmuch as Denmark, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Egypt, Persia and Portugal do not unduly discriminate in their tariffs against goods imported from the United States, these countries are entitled to the minimum rates established by the Payne-Aldrich act.

In the case of Denmark the rates apply to all her colonies. Photographs of Iceland, Iceland and Greenland and the West Indian islands, St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John.

In the case of The Netherlands the islands of Curacao and of Dutch Guiana, but not the Dutch West Indian islands, receive the minimum rates.

In the case of Belgium only the mother country, and not the Congo is included.

As to Portugal the proclamation includes the neighboring islands of Madeira and the Azores, but not her other colonies.

In the case of Norway, Sweden, Egypt and Persia Denmark is the mother of colonies involved.

In all other respects the proclamation is identical in tenor to that issued some days ago in the case of Italy.

GRANDFATHER CLAUSE LACKING

Bill for Negro Suffrage Amendment to Maryland Constitution.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 29.—A bill providing a negro suffrage amendment to the state constitution was introduced in the legislature today. It is similar to the amendment defeated at the polls at the last election, but lacks the "grandfather" clause of the proposed amendment.

PHOTOGRAPHERS CATCH TAIL.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 29.—The spectacular visitation in the northern sky introduced by the appearance of comet A 1910 with the possibility of a tail which two photographers connected with the Harvard College observatory have caught, measuring three degrees in length and one and one-half degrees in breadth. Sodium and cyanogen bands were showing upon the photographs.

A letter received at the Harvard observatory from Professor Frost, director of the Yerkes observatory, says: "January 21 I observed the comet visually with the spectrograph. Bright bands, very conspicuous, with broad coloring. Parkhurst and Slipher, using the spectrograms. The bands appear conspicuously the three cyanogen bands and the other features of the nebulous spectrum and continuous spectrum as four days ago, on both plates. Tail on plates showed nine degrees."

CHINA DENIES A PARLIAMENT.

Throne Adheres to the Original Plan of Imperial Assembly.

PEKIN, Jan. 30.—An imperial edict issued today denies the petition recently submitted by 30 representatives of the provinces who are now in Pekin, asking for the early establishment of a Parliament. The throne adheres to the original plan of an imperial assembly now and the establishment of a parliament at the end of nine years, according to the constitutional scheme.

CONSERVATION BILL'S JOKER.

Administration Measures Prepared by Ballinger.

New Congressman Honored—Amendment to Change Inauguration Date Held Up.

(Washington correspondence of the News.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—One of the most drastic measures for a conservation law has created a storm in the public lands committee of the Senate. Proposals were prepared by Secretary Ballinger and friends of Pinchot, and introduced by Senator Nelson, but it would not have the conservation movement. The bill provides that the Secretary of the Interior may make temporary withdrawals of public lands and report them to Congress for ratification. Provision is made for ratification by Congress, without notice or consideration, and one may reopen such lands for entry only. There is a waste for other zones as it stands on amended March clause, but in practice work is done this way: Congress would receive the reports of the Secretary of the Interior on withdrawals. The other departments, and so on, the matter would not so far as was discussed. Thus the temporary withdrawal would run indefinitely and would give the lands in question to the mercy of any Secretary of the Interior, who might be in office. He could present them for entry to anybody he chosed and do as his own sweet will. Meanwhile, the whole transaction would be secret.

NOT OVER-WORKING.

Yet the Assembly Committees Are Busy With Measures.

Events of the Week in the Legislature and the Outlook for the Future.

(Correspondence of the News.)

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 29.—The members of the legislature certainly have not overworked this week, for the amount of business transacted has been small and not of a high degree of importance. The committees are busy, however, and it may not be long before they will be ready to report measures for consideration in the House. What has been done so far has been only preliminary to the real work is still to come. There is no new condition, for this is the early part of every session, however much intention there may be to change the same old story repeated each year and practiced. The work is done in the latter part of the session, and often in the latter part of that half.

The Carolina bonds incident which closed when the governor withdrew his resolution for their return to be taken to New York and put into the committee which represents holders there. The state washed itself of the bonds and the scrutch which rested upon it, and passed its if in a position to repudiate it to accept this gift, and the passage without proper consideration of an act requiring the [illegible] of one-half of the Quickly following this came the return to the state of Manchester of Providence, the man who was the local representative of bondholders in securing the enabling act and his contention that he supposed the bonds were so represented in the matter in any capacity, seems to the incident has now come to a large extent and the [illegible] no stir in connection with it.

General Treasurer Read has a statement in his annual report of all the bills against the state and the treasury will be [illegible] estimate of expenses for the year to come was $1,904,516, but in the books of this report came a appropriation bill, with an [illegible] $500,000, which is the most over presented to the [illegible] that this will need to be [illegible] is evident from Treasurer Read's report, or will be put heavily in debt. THE CITY'S COAL BILL.

If one studies the bids recently opened for a partial supply of coal for the city's use he will find much food for reflection, though the advertisement for proposals should also be read and digested. At first view it would appear as though the city was to pay three cents more a ton for coal for the City Hall than any citizen with money in his pocket need pay for a single ton. The citizen will receive only 2,000 pounds to the ton, and the City Hall 2,240. The poor department also receives the same amount for that is what the advertisement requires, and yet in the same advertisement for some reason the highway department calls for short ton. Here where a direct comparison can be made with the prices paid by business men, the city pays more than the private party. The fire and school departments purchase their coal in the summer, when prices are less than at present, so that it is impossible to compare them with the current bids.

Of course the city must expect to pay more for coal for the poor, since it is put out in small lots, and yet with reasonable facilities for taking in fuel at the various buildings the city should be able to secure as favorable contracts as private individuals. It is possible that in some of the municipal buildings the putting in of coal is a difficult matter and that only limited quantities can be taken at a time, in which cases it would be of advantage to the city to provide accommodations for its coal which would permit it to enjoy the best market prices. The city might well consolidate its departments for the purchase of coal and provide for taking it all in the spring. The dealers could then, by handling a large quantity in slack times, save the city hundreds of dollars.

BOYCOTTING BOYCOTTS.

Here's a how-do-do! Several labor unions have sworn off on eating meat until the prices come down within easy reach, and a number of excited Kansas farmers—people in Kansas are frequently excited—have met and resolved to stand by meat prices and boycott the goods produced by the workingmen who have adopted vegetarianism temporarily. They declared that, if organized labor carries out a general boycott on meat, "the farmers proposes to wage an uncompromising war on every labor organization that enters into this boycott." They will not only buy nothing made by such labor organizations, but they will even support the cause of free trade.

Perhaps the latter will scare the poor labor organizations less than the farmers of Frankfort, Kan., imagine. Secretary Wilson has just told the Philadelphians that "it costs more to get the common necessaries of life in the United States today than in any other country in the world." Evidently there is not quite so much in the protective system as has often been represented. Even if it is the cause of high wages, these are offset in greater or less degree by high costs of living. If the necessaries of life cost less abroad, then the American workingman hasn't quite everything on his side.

Apart from this question of how far the duties on food and wool and pretty much everything else affect the cost of living, it would seem at this distance that the Kansas farmers are making common cause with the beef trust without sufficient reflection. Mr. Wilson says the farmers are receiving only a little more for their stock than formerly, while the consumers are paying a great deal more for their meats. It is charged against the beef trust that it not only makes meat prices high, but keeps the price of cattle and hogs relatively low. That is what that commercial editor in Kansas City believes who says the beef trust makes a net profit of $7.40 per head of cattle killed. The Kansas farmers ought to consider whether the beef trust is not their enemy as well as the enemy of the consumers.

THE ART OF ECONOMY.

The idea of economy appeals in some way to nearly everybody, but the mistake which the majority of people make at first is in thinking it can be practiced offhand, without any preparation. Economy is an art to be acquired by studied methods and those who rush recklessly into it, feeling sure that they are traveling the right road in the right direction, usually find to their sorrow that they are wrong and there is much less money in their pockets than when they decided to economize. It seems a pity that so many are led into real extravagance which they can ill afford through ignorance of the right way to economize, when a little study of the subject would have shown them how they could save instead of waste their substance.

One of the first rules which is closely followed by those who have made the subject a matter of study is to buy good quality or not at all. One can readily see how this would apply to many people, who are apt to buy a cheap thing thinking it will do as well as a dearer article. They thus feel that they are economizing in the right way, and too late perceive the imperfections and inefficiency of the inferior article and after all are obliged to purchase the better at a higher price. The thing which pays in the end is the only one which pays at all, and this is always the thing which cost more in the beginning. A good rule to remember is "when in doubt do without," but it is a hard rule for many people to learn.

One of the first principles of economy is always to know just what one is saving for, and what this has been determined upon the ways to economize will open on every hand and one will be surprised at the amount wasted which could have been saved if there had been knowledge of the manner in which it could be done and the savings invested in other ways to make for thrift. People who are making the subject a matter of much thought are finding that no sum is too small to be saved in the hope of letting it work for them, or of using it to help some one poorer than themselves.

The study of the art of economy should interest everybody, no matter what the station in life. The more students it has the fewer failures and calamities we shall hear of in the business life of the country, and the happier and more contented the people will be for the knowledge they have acquired through a thorough consideration of the subject.

THE QUALITY OF STEEL.

The Iron Trade Review makes the interesting suggestion that the world is at the beginning of a period of improvement in the quality of steel. Thus far every effort has been made to increase the quantity and reduce the cost of production; now, it is suggested, the world is probably producing steel fast enough, and the rate at which it is being sold shows that it is produced cheaply enough. The demand of two or three years ago from the railroads for a better quality of steel rails may have been the beginning of a general demand for better qualities of steel.

Few inventions have had such enormous influence upon industries as that of Sir Henry Bessemer for the production of cheap steel. Steel has been made time out of mind. At a very early day man discovered how to harden and temper his iron into steel, and made phenomenally good steel, too. Notwithstanding modern times have equaled the blades of Damascus and Toledo, if we may believe all the stories which Sheffield knives have mutilated down regarding them. But crucible steel was expensive and the world needed cheap steel. The demand began with rails, but it spread by some alps from boiler makers and ship builders, and then from all workers in iron.

Bessemer's invention provided cheap steel, but the cheapening process has continued along other lines. The amount of labor involved in making steel has been steadily decreased, and nowhere else so fast as in this country, where wages are high and there is abundant inventive capacity. Andrew Carnegie's review of the American steel and iron industry, written for the New York Evening Post's Nineteenth Century issue, gave an almost marvelous account of the extent to which labor has been economized in the industry of which he is a proud master.

We have cheap steel, and now if we can have cheap steel of fine quality we may have a revolution equal to that creating by Henry Bessemer.

Washington will not blossom out with Japanese cherry blossoms next summer. The 2,000 trees presented to the United States by Japan, and to be planted at the capital, have been found to contain insects which might in time endanger the American plant industry and have been burned. Every precaution was taken in the handling and shipment of the trees after arrival in America, and they reached Washington in excellent condition. They were examined to ascertain the best method of treating them, and were found to be badly infected with the root gall worm and with insect pests, some hitherto unknown to the United States.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts contends that the tariff is not responsible for the increase in the price of food. He says prices have advanced all over the world and the increase is not confined to the United States, and reasons from this fact that the tariff is not the cause of the existing situation. He finds in the increase in the gold supply and in the increased demand of consumers an adequate explanation of present conditions and urges that the tariff could not and did not have any effect on the price of the staple articles of diet. Senator Lodge offers a little consolation in the announcement that prices are lower here than in many other countries.

Will the theatre and opera-going public ever be satisfied that it has reached the extreme stage of grueesomeness in the name of "Art?" This may be known Tuesday night, when "Elektra" is put on the New York boards. A New York paper speaks of it as "an epileptic fit set to music." The artiste describes it as "awful; in fact the most terrible that a composer has ever undertaken to embody in an opera."

Still another excuse of the high price of meat, or of a particular kind of meat, is given in the slaughter of sheep by running dogs. What is true of New England is particularly true of the towns of Middletown and Portsmouth. Farmers formerly had flocks of sheep of greater or less size, where now there are scarcely any to be found, and mutton, if not quite wholly because of the predatory habits of dogs from neighboring farms or from Newport.

Mayor Gaynor has be a chief executive of New York one month and is able to announce that there will be a reduction of $1,000,000 in the city's payroll this year. It is said that never before has such a drastic retrenchment been made in the first four weeks of a new administration.

In all probability we have seen the last of Comet A 1910. It has grown so faint and is so low in the west that the conditions will most go be exceptional if it is again seen. It has been very shy in showing itself to people in this locality.

January has not been a very severe winter month, in spite of the fact that it furnished the heaviest snowstorm of the season. It has been on the whole a moderate sort of winter.

The comet is spoken of as "brighter than Venus" and "spectacular." If these terms can be applied to the visitor elsewhere they are not true in this region.

"One of the Worms" is turning in great shape, because of the imposition of the high tariff, which makes every consumer pay the cost.

Paris may well rejoice that the flood has begun to recede, but hardly appreciates yet the extent of the damage sustained.

COMET A 1910.

[New York Tribune.]

Though scarcely a fortnight has elapsed since the first comet discovered this year was reported by a South African observer, at least one puzzling phenomenon has been exhibited by the celestial visitor. Its tail has split in two, one branch forming a considerable angle with the other. Sometimes the head of a comet divides, possibly as the result of collision with an unseen object in space. What has happened to the new comet, however, is evidently of a different character. The direction in which a comet's tail extends is governed by the repulsive action of the sun, but when two tails diverge they apparently repel each other. Why they should do so is one of the problems the astronomers have not yet solved.

Whether the new-comer has ever been seen before is another question not satisfactorily answered. That it is identical with a comet discovered a century ago by Pons, but for some reason named after Winnecke, is an opinion expressed in a dispatch from Manila. The trouble with this conjecture is that Winnecke's comet, which has a period of only 5.6 years, last came in 1909. It can be positively affirmed, moreover, that the visitor is not Halley's comet, the return of which after an absence of seventy-four years, was reported in September last. Halley's comet, though increasing in brightness, is not yet visible without a glass while a striking characteristic of Comet A 1910 is its exceptional brilliancy. Besides Halley's comet is very much larger in the heavens than is Andromeda and the Square of Pegasus. Enough of the path of the new comet has been noted to make computations of its full orbit possible and also to determine how long a time it takes to make a complete journey to and from the sun. Enterprising mathematicians, therefore, will soon be able to tell whether or not it and previ[illegible] with those of any known comet. If no authoritative announcement of the kind should be made before long, the reports on that Comet A is an entire stranger, will be justified.

In its flights through space the sun is continually passing through regions never before invaded by it. On its way it picks up one cometary wanderer after another, keeping some of them within its influence for centuries, and losing its hold on others after the briefest acquaintance. As at least half of the comets observed in the course of a year are new ones there is at least an even chance that the brilliant object which has for several evenings outshone Venus never before entered the solar system.

PREVENTING THE EXPORT OF MEAT

[Boston Transcript.]

One of the most curious suggestions emerging from the high-price hysteria is the proposal to prevent by some legal mechanism the consummation of what is not yet clear, the export of meat. If the producers were obliged to dispose of that home they would presumably get quite moderate prices for it and yet not be in the slightest benefiting Germany's navy or enabling our meat producers and consuming diplomatic representatives to pay higher dues for their entry. The embargo idea seems modern. It has for years been an aim of all administrations. The anomaly of the whole thing recalls the attempted agreement of the Southern cotton planters to burn a certain percentage of their crop in order to keep up the price of the rest of it, at the same time it is true, not applying the process to eight or nine hundred thousand bales of cotton, but leaving the money in the hands of people who would spend it. The idea of a voluntary withdrawal of a portion of the product to keep up the price of the rest is not a novel one. Would such an artificial agreement [illegible] kind ever be entered into?

WOMAN'S RIGHTS YEARS AGO.

[Marquise de Fontenoy.]

Lady Constance Lytton, Mrs. Annie Bryce, and other women on both sides of the Atlantic, who are now engaged in the struggle for "women's rights," may be interested to learn that as long ago as in the seventeenth century a movement of this kind was already afoot in the Old World, and that in 1610 King Ladislas IV of Poland received a petition, still on file in the library of the University of Cracow, from the women of Poland and Lithuania which by order of the monarch has submitted to the parliament of Poland by a deputation of the petitioners, who were asserted to represent the marriageable women of the country. The petition contained at least a score of different requests, some of which may be commended to the equal rights movement of the present day here in the United States. Thus, one of the demands is as follows:

"In view of the fact that the young men of this country are accustomed to spend far too much time in courting, and avoid entering the state of wedlock as much as possible, we, your petitioners, humbly ask that a limit be set to the time for courtship and that it be made obligatory for the young men to marry the young women whom they are courting not later than the following June after they keep company together, failing which a penalty be imposed of 1,000 golden, to be used for the support of young Polish orphan girls."

Two of the requests relate to matrimonial marriage and the sovereign and parliament are urged to punish severely all couples who marry for money, and to take special care that "no father shall in future give his daughter in marriage to a man whom she does not love." Another demand is that a law be enacted by crown and parliament compelling every man to wed before he is 36 because 19 is to the effect that special pains be taken to prevent unsuitable persons from marrying each other. In order to make their meaning entirely clear, the petitioners explain that old men should marry had women and that innocent youths should marry innocent girls, and so on. They do not say what impelled them to make this remarkable proposition, but the stress which they laid upon it shows that they considered it of great importance. Demand 20 insists that only those men should be permitted to become soldiers who are by temperament or otherwise clearly unfitted to become husbands and fathers. Clause 19 of the petition reads as follows:

"Since widows, even if they have lost one or more husbands, do not refrain from enticing innocent young men, we beg for the enactment of a law forbidding widows to marry after they have passed the age of 40 years, and our reason for making this request is because at that age widows should no longer be frolicsome and anxious to win the love of young men, but should spend their time in spinning and at prayer."

The petitioners claim that some women are plain looking, and that a few are even ugly. For the benefit of the latter they ask that all aids to beauty, presumably meaning thereby cosmetics, false hair and the like be admitted into the country free of duty. "There no obstacles should be placed in the way of unattractive young women who desire to render themselves attractive in the eyes of young men."

I am unable to furnish any information as to whether King Ladislas IV and the parliament of Poland granted this remarkable petition or not. History is silent on the subject. But the very fact that it should have been presented to the sovereign and should have received his consideration, as well as that of the national legislature of Poland more than 250 years ago, cannot fail to prove of interest to all the women who are now engaged in this country and in England in an endeavor to secure the recognition of rights equal to those of men.

HIRING HELP IN EAST AFRICA.

[World Wide Magazine.]

The "servant problem" is bad enough in America, and the experiences mistresses have to relate are many and varied; but an infinitely wider range of possibilities is opened when more than one man, and a bachelor man at that, tackles the servant and other household problems in an East African bungalow. Anything can happen—and does happen.

Native house-servants of a sort are plentiful enough around the chief towns of British East Africa, Nairobi and Mombasa, and the slightest rumor that the mzungu (white man) requires a "boy" or m'pezi (cook) fills one's compound with cooks, "generals" and raw niggers, representing every tribe under Africa's sun.

The average bachelor contents himself with four servants—a head "boy," a cook, a "toto (youth) to assist them, and a m'shenzi (raw untrained native) for odd jobs, gardening, etc.

It is no easy task to make a selection from the host of eager, voluble applicants. Dirty, carefully-stuck-together "barats" (testimonials) are examined and the owners questioned, but it is unwise to put much faith in these documents, for it is no unusual occurrence for a "boy"—on the principle of "the more the merrier"—to proudly present you with three testimonials, everyone bearing a different name from the one under which he introduces himself. These gentry are always greatly offended when you kick them off the veranda and tell them they have bought or stolen the documents from other natives! Upon one occasion a would-be cook brought me a "barat" signed by a well-known settler, and worded:

"To whom it may concern. The bearer of this 'barat' is an infernal rogue and thief. Please kick him out."

By the time I had stopped laughing the nigger had arrived at the conclusion that something was wrong, and was going record time down the path, so I was unable to avail myself of the kind invitation.

HOME FROM HOLYOKE.

Boys Had an All-Night Trip, But a Fine Time.

Delegates to Y. M. C. A. Conference Hospitably Entertained and the Meetings Profitable.

The boys of the Newport Young Men's Christian Association who attended the boys' conference of the Massachusetts and Rhode Island Associations at Holyoke, Mass., returned this morning, after a pleasing trip and a profitable conference. They were accompanied by Boys' Secretary Jackson, leaving here Friday morning and arriving, after a six hours' trip, in time to be well settled in the places where they were to be entertained before the banquet and opening meeting in the evening.

The Newport boys made only a small part of the conference, there being 450 delegates and boys' secretaries in the gathering. The hospitality was a pleasing introduction to the hospitality of the people of Holyoke, which the delegates found to be not merely [illegible] but [illegible] the best houses in the city were opened to the delegates, who were invited as guests of the family while in Holyoke. After the banquet there was a meeting of the conference at which the principal addresses were made by Carl W. Hamilton of Yale, who spoke on "The Great Call."

Sectionals of the conference were held Saturday morning, at 9:30 and 11 respectively, at which many [illegible] were made, and business transacted, the officers being selected from among the delegates. Saturday afternoon, after 3 o'clock, was given up to sightseeing. The delegates accepted the invitation of Mayor Avery, inspected the city's electric plant, an extensive affair, which is said to furnish electricity [illegible] and other municipal plants [illegible].

[illegible] the addresses which made the most [illegible] impression were those of [illegible] A. C. Wormatus, U. S. N., on the military life as seen by a navy officer.

Sunday afternoon there was a meeting in the Holyoke Opera House with nearly 1,000 boys in the audience, the principal address being on "The Boy's Work," by Dr. Fisher of New York, director of the Brooklyn Schools Athletic League and a prominent advocate of physical training. Sunday evening there was a consecration meeting in one of the churches, where the central portion of the auditorium was reserved for the delegates. This service was specially interesting. The address was by Rev. Lucius H. Bugbee of Brooklyn, on "The Two Window of the Soul." At the conclusion the delegates joined hands around the church and sang two verses of "Blest be the Tie that Binds." Taps were sounded on the cornet and the president declared the conference ended.

State Secretary H. W. Gibson and Messrs. Hern and Whitman of the state boys' work committee were present during the conference.

Three general committees were appointed by the conference, and one of these, that on greetings, Fred H. Bryant of this city was chairman.

The Newport delegates left Holyoke at 11 o'clock Sunday evening on their way home. There was a short run to Springfield and then a wait of three hours or more before the train arrived. In this interval, although it was night, the boys went into the city on an inspecting tour, and saw the training school and other points of buildings. From Springfield its run to Newport with changes was made in less than six hours. The boys did not have much sleep on the way home, but are awake enough today to say that they had a pleasant and profitable trip.

Physical Director Caswell of the Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium has selected the players to represent the Junior Middles and Intermediates in basket ball, as follows:

Intermediates—J. McGowan and H. Oxx, forwards; W. Peckham, centre; F. Bissel and M. Lee, backs; E. Franks, substitute.

The coronate basket ball league games will begin Saturday, the juniors having eight teams, the Junior Middles eight and the Intermediates six.

SMALL NUMBER ASHORE.

Yet the Army and Navy Association Had Its Usual Bible Study and Church Party.

A departure from the usual order of things was made in the Saturday evening social for soldiers and sailors at the Army and Navy Young Men's Christian Association. The men, instead of proceeding to the third floor for a social time, gathered in the lower rooms, where the phonograph was kept busy all the evening. A good social time was had, and they all received peanuts with which to end the entertainment.

The attendance at the Home Bear Bible Club Sunday was small, owing to the restriction of liberty at the Training Station. One class was formed and a study of part of the Sermon on the Mount was taken up. At the conclusion of the Bible study a committee from the First Presbyterian Church, consisting of Mrs. Lucy Mrs. Metcalf, Mrs. McKay and Mrs. Lewton, with Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. Powell assisting, served an attractive luncheon to the members of the class. A large number of the class attendants visited the Christian Endeavor Society at the Presbyterian Church, a number of the men taking an active part in the devotional meeting.

The church party from the rooms joined the men who had preceded them at the church, and assisted in the evening service. A chorus of 40 voices was formed to assist in the congregational singing. Following the opening hymns E. P. Ellis read the Scripture lesson and prayer was offered by Assistant Secretary Miller. Private James C. Parker was called upon for a brief talk and gave an excellent testimony. Carlos E. Hinman, of the Bear Brotherhood, was introduced and told a little story of a life checkered with sunshine and shadow. H. W. Smith, A. W. Nelson, and C. H. Anderson of the Young Men's Club followed with lists of experiences. Mr. Anderson, of the Association work for enlisted men, described the Naval Temperance League work, the Enlisted Men's Bible and Prayer Leagues, and the Correspondence Bible Club courses for enlisted men; also the efforts of the Home Bear Bible Club. "Flow Out the Life-Blood" was sung by the chorus of enlisted men in conclusion.

WALTHAM MEN AGAIN AT WORK.

Enforced Lay-Off Due to Fear of Over-Accumulation of Stock.

WALTHAM, Mass., Jan. 31.—The 4,000 employes of the Waltham Watch Company returned to work here today after a week of idleness. To prevent an over-accumulation of stock, the enforced lay-off was due.

A CASE OF SCARLET FEVER.

Apprentice Yeoman Has the Disease and the Training Station Under Quarantine.

A case of scarlet fever developed at the Naval Training Station Saturday and immediately the usual precautionary measures of quarantine and fumigation were instituted. The victim, Victor J. Sheridan, an apprentice yeoman, was placed in the contagious ward at the naval hospital as soon as his illness was diagnosed. The other members of the division, who have been quartered on board the Reina Mercedes, have received careful preventive attention and been moved to the Constellation, that their own ship may be fumigated, and will be kept clear of the other divisions on the island. There are now more than 1,200 boys at the Station and it is not proposed to have an epidemic if it can be prevented.

Sheridan has been at the Station six months or so, and is of that class of apprentices who are not under the same restrictions as the boys. He has been enjoying liberty in Newport, and for that reason it is believed was exposed to the disease here. Accordingly all liberty for the boys ashore and all visiting at the ships and barracks have been stopped. Captain Hourigan states to The News that at present visiting the families of the officers will not be restricted, neither will their going and coming. The warrant officers, chief petty officers and men having families ashore will be allowed to go and come so long as they keep away from contaminated places; but they are expected not to do much visiting outside their homes. Of course such a thing as roller skating in Barracks is now off.

The absence of uniforms in the city has accordingly been marked during the past 18 hours. Today a number of men were ashore, but they were returning from leave and before going to the Station were directed to gather any articles which they might have desired as they might have an indefinite sojourn at the Station. Accordingly men gave up rooms, packed clothing and otherwise made arrangements as if going on a cruise.

The local Board of Health as soon as it heard of the Station quarantine began to take notice of some things which had been said in regard to the contagion having come from Newport. There is not a case in the city prevalent of scarlet fever. There was one case only in the month three in December and two in November, which is a remarkable showing; in fact, the local health authorities say the city has been partially free from contagion during the winter.

The young man who is sick, together with a shipmate, had a room in New[illegible]. This they gave up, it is learned, two weeks ago, which is the exact period of incubation. Where they have been the nights since, if they have been ashore, remains for the authorities to learn. While they can eliminate the regular shipping place as the place from which the disease was contracted, and do not know of any other place which would give it, they are willing to be informed, and until then are inclined to feel that the Station authorities are wrong in ascribing the case to Newport, thinking some other city to which the men go more frequently to be responsible. The Board of Health is in communication with the senior medical officer at the naval hospital, and between them it is hoped to work out something definite.

PROBATE COURT.

In the probate court this morning the will of Bridget Mooney was proved and letters of administration on the estate with the will annexed, were granted to Andrew J. Kirwin. The inventory of the estate of Malvina Tilghman was allowed. The matter of probate of the will of Catherine Johnson was continued to February 7.

A special session of the court was held Saturday, when there was a hearing on the petition for the probate of the will of Hannah Stacy. There were two objectors to the probate, but they did not disclose what grounds they had for objecting and the matter was largely formal. The witnesses were heard and the will was proved and letters testamentary thereon were granted to Joshua Stacy and Harriet N. Redd. It is likely that an appeal will be taken.

THE CHARGES AGAINST ALLDS.

Conger's Complaint Against New York Senator Formally Present.

ALBANY, Jan. 31.—When Lafayette B. Gleason, clerk of the senate, reached his office today he found a registered letter from Cortlandt, containing the formal charges which Senator Henry Conger had drawn up against Senator J. Y. Allds, Republican president of the senate, alleging that Allds April 21, 1909, while a member of the assembly, accepted, received and accepted $1,000 in consideration for his failure to press a certain bill then pending before the house. The charges will be presented to the senate tonight.

TOM JOHNSON NOT LOCATED.

Said to Be Undergoing Medical Treatment Somewhere in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Although Tom L. Johnson, former mayor of Cleveland, is believed to be in this city undergoing medical treatment, nothing definite could be learned today regarding either his whereabouts or his condition. Teh former mayor is known to have been a guest at the Hotel Prince oding for several days preceding Saturday last. He is said to have left the hostelry on that day either for his home in Cleveland or for another stopping place in this city. The hotel management denied today that he was still a guest at the Prince Oloan, but he could not be located elsewhere here.

Lafrin B. Johnson, son of the ex-mayor, when asked today whether his father was here undergoing treatment, and if so, where he was and how he was, was equally reticent. "Nothing whatever to say" was his reply.

Men and Boys Arrested in Providence for Selling Cocaine.

Three men who are said to be the principal traffickers in cocaine among boys in Providence were arrested Sunday evening and locked up on charges of selling the drug illegally. The arrests were made at the instance of Captain Stone of the Central precinct, who is making an effort to stamp out the business in his part of the city. Besides the men Captain Stone also captured a bottle and a whole bundle of small packages which contained the stuff. In the language of the street, it is known as "coke" or "dope," and the police say it is much used by boys who have short pocket-rooms. The prisoners were captured in at intervals by Captain Stone and his men and are said to have admitted making sales of the "coke" among their friends and companions. With them were also held, temporarily, several boys who told the police they bought quantities of the dream-producer from the prisoners.

After a right in the rear of the Central Fire Station, Providence, by several city officials and the architect, it was stated that the recently discovered fissures between the floors and the walls in the rooms directly under the tower were due to shrinkage. It was announced after the investigation that there was absolutely nothing wrong with the tower. Mr. Hall of the firm of architects of the structure said: "There is no reason why the tower should crack and we would be pleased to have it removed except that we do not wish the public to get the idea that if it is not removed it will fall down." The inspection was made by Superintendent of Public Buildings Evans, Inspector of Buildings Hopkins, Architect Hall and John B. Rowson of the city engineer's office, together with several assistants. The discovery of the trouble at the station has given rise to a renewal of the agitation for removing the tower. The investigation included a close scrutiny and measurement of the interior and exterior of the tower. No the slightest crack was found in the brick, a condition which would certainly have appeared said the officials, had the tower bulged or settled. The fine cracks or fissures run along the ceiling directly under the floor where the beams have appeared may account for the shrinkage of the woodwork, was the opinion advanced after the investigation.

The union of the Catholic Holy Name Societies of the diocese of Providence was perfected at a meeting of delegates from the different branches Sunday in Providence. Thirty-one branches, from all parts of the state, were represented. James A. Cahill of the Sacred Heart Church, East Providence, was elected the first president, and the appointment of a supreme spiritual director was left to Bishop Harkins. The new body is to be known as "The Union of the Holy Name Societies of the Diocese of Providence." Its object is to bring together in one organization all branches of the society now existing throughout the state, and to establish new branches in parishes in which none now exist. The organization will also take up the work of instilling new life into all its branches and stimulating these to renewed activity. Heretofore the work has been carried on by individual branches connected with the various parishes with no central body. While the membership is large at present, it is proposed to begin a campaign at once which will result in the enrolling of every Catholic man in the diocese of Providence under the banner of the Holy Name.

The storm of Saturday night caused darkness to descend upon Barrington Centre and vicinity about 11:00 o'clock because the high-voltage wires of the Narragansett Electric Lighting Company and of the Rhode Island Company, at that village, went out of commission. A pole at Maxfield's Corner, through a swinging wire in it said, caught fire and burned off just below the cross piece carrying all the wires. The burning of the pole caused the wires to drop and become tangled, so that the companies found it necessary to shut off the power traversing those lines. The repair car went there early Sunday morning, and about 6 o'clock repaired the damage so that the current could be again turned on. The street lights and the electric lights in the houses in the vicinity were not operative after the accident until Sunday morning.

the Thomas villa on Bellevue avenue, Newport, and it is because of the verdict in the case that Mr. Thomas wishes a new trial, claiming that the villa is not his but his wife's. The negotiation of the loan, as shown in the evidence at the trial was one of the high-finance proceedings of which the country has heard so much of late, and in rendering the decision today Justice Sweetland gives considerable attention to the testimony, as showing how the game of high finance is played.

Thomas claims to have notified Morse that he held no title in the Newport property, while the plaintiff's contention was that the property was in the name of the defendant at the time of the loan and the transfer to his wife was not filed at Newport until a month later.

To show the plaintiff's knowledge of the title of the property, the court reviewed the evidence at the trial, when Mr. Thomas testified to a meeting in Mr. Morse's private office. It was as follows: "I spoke to him and told him I wanted a loan of $50,000, and he said: 'Well, I don't know whether we can loan you or not. Can you put up any security?' I said I didn't know. He said: 'How about your house in the city?' I told him that that was deeded to my wife before father died. He then asked about the Newport property, and I said I gave that to my wife two years ago, but I could help his bank by getting depositors for it. Mr. Morse said all right, he would make the loan, and brought in the president, Mr. Curtis and the cashier. Morse then said: 'I have arranged the details for a loan to Mr. Thomas. When he sends over his note it may be discounted and the money placed to his credit in the bank and you make out the loan.' That afternoon he sent over a boy with his note and they got back a record of the money. Had told them in the morning that I would not want the money for several days."

The deposition of Morse at the trial was that the attachm nt was made after he ceased to be vice president of the plaintiff corporation, that he learned of the attachment from a newspaper, and that previous to the attachment he had no knowledge in regard to the ownership of the defendant's property in Rhode Island. In regard to the question of at the time of the negotiation of the loan Morse was questioned and stated each time, in answer to the various ways the question was put, that he had no recollection how the property in Newport stood or that there was any conversation about it.

The court commented upon the testimony of the subject between the parties, and said: "The preceding justice and the supreme court have decided from the evidence in this case that the plaintiff and the defendant I deed from the defendant to his wife was unrecorded. The preceding justice has refused to set the verdict aside and this court will not disturb it unless it shall appear to be the ruling of said justice. Then the court goes on to review the evidence.

The court overrules the exceptions and the case is remitted to the superior court with direction to enter judgment upon the verdict for the defendant and to dismiss the writ.

A NATIONAL ORGANIZATION.

Professional Chauffeurs' Association Incorporated in Providence.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 31.—A chauffeurs' union was incorporated at the state house this afternoon, when papers were given to the Professional Chauffeurs' Association of America. The officers claim that it is a national organization of the representatives of professional chauffeurs who are interested in the welfare and rights of their profession. The bride is a Newport girl, known in Newport society.

FISKE EXAMINATION DEFERRED.

Keene Named as Defendant, Also, in Taylor Hocking Coal Suit.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—As was expected, the examination of James R. Keene before United States Commissioner Alexander in the J. M. Fiske & Co. bankruptcy proceedings was adjourned today to February 7. Mr. Keene was subpoenaed Saturday to give testimony regarding the pool he is said to have formed in the stock of the Taylor Hocking Coal & Iron Co., the collapse of which recently caused great failures on the Stock Exchange, including that of the Fiske firm. Mr. Keene was the reputed backer of the pool. He said that he had no connection with the pool. He said that he was out of town when the pool was formed, but that he had given his brokers a free hand to do what they thought best.

TROUBLE WITH THE GAS.

Unequal to Demands for Heating and Lighting Purposes and Complaints General.

Saturday it was with the utmost difficulty that The News went to press because gas is used in heating the metal in the type casting machines, and the gas coming through the pipes was not showing the required pressure. Many homes about the city are now depending upon gas ranges for cooking, and there was a general complaint that the housewives could not do their regular Saturday baking. When evening came those who use gas for lighting found its illuminating power even poorer than usual. The employees of the company could be seen plodding about all parts of the town, with force pumps to blow out the pipes, and were at this long after the sun set. Their visits to the cellars of houses gave one an impression that the company was trying to correct conditions but the trouble because of its general nature all over the city, was something the little pumps could not be expected to remedy.

Different opinions were expressed by users of the gas; some said there was a deficiency of pressure, others that it contained too much air, but most were satisfied simply to say that it would not illuminate or heat. It is said that the company is short of coal at the works, and others report that another mixture is being tried, whereby even less coal than formerly is required. Gas of today as used in Newport and many other places is no longer the old-fashioned coal product, but a combination of coal gas and so-called water gas. Massachusetts regulates mixture by law and inspection, but in Rhode Island there is no such law or inspection. The illuminating gas of today has a tendency to deposit a solid in the pipes, which in time cuts down the pressure, but the present difficulty, which is not little improved today, has every appearance of being back at the works. It is not the first trouble of this kind and the company or the company have a variety of excuses when one makes a complaint.

The News is assured by the gas company that more pressure will be put on and much of the difficulty remedied.

FORMER NEWPORT RESIDENTS.

William G. Read, a native of Newport and for many years a prominent banker and broker in New York, died Saturday at his home in that city, in his eighty-seventh year. He was the eldest son of the late Oliver Read, a prominent Newport business man in the earlier part of the last century, and was born in Newport in October, 1823. When a young man he engaged in business with his father in Charleston, S. C., and came north in 1849 and soon after engaged in the dry goods business with D. C. Cushman in New York.

Later he went into Wall Street with Jasper T. Van Vleck, a banker. Mr. Read was made a partner in the firm, which took the name of Van Vleck & Read, and he remained successively Van Vleck, Read & Drexel and Read, Drexel & Co. Mr. Read retired from it many years ago. He was a trustee on the old Gold Board and was admitted to the Stock Exchange February 26, 1869, and was one of its five or six oldest members. Up to two years ago Mr. Read was in almost daily attendance at the Exchange, though of late years he conducted no business other than for his own account.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Emeline Read, daughter of the late James Taylor, and two daughters, Mrs. Valentine Blanpied of Paris, and Mrs. William Ogilvie of New York. His country residence is at Mamaroneck.

A younger brother, Edwin O. Read, who was also prominently connected with the Stock Exchange and banking business in New York, died a few months ago.

News has been received here of the death in New Rochelle, N. Y., Saturday, of Mr. Charles D. Freeborn, formerly of this city, son of Joseph Barker and Mary A. Freeborn of this city. Mr. Freeborn was born in Newport, the family belonging to Providence since early days. His brothers were the late John B. Freeborn and John H. Freeborn, and Mrs. Charles Moore and Mrs. William Kent, the latter of Providence, and Mrs. Mason, who [illegible] Mr. Freeborn [illegible] New York. PRESENTED TO CONGRESS.

Pension Bills and Petitions Introduced by Senator Wetmore and Representative Sheffield.

The national House of Representatives had another private pension bill day last week, the second for the session, and in the brief time it took the clerk to read the titles added six names to the pension roll. Included in the list were three Rhode Island claimants, Hannah Keeley, dependent mother of John D. Keeley, and John Malone and George A. Earle, whose bills were introduced by Representative Sheffield.

Representative Sheffield has introduced a bill increasing the pension of John Wareham of Providence, late of the First Rhode Island volunteer light battery, to $10 a month.

Senator Wetmore has introduced a bill increasing the pension of Mrs. Mary J. Sweet of Wakefield, widow of Samuel C. Sweet of Company H, Fourth Rhode Island volunteer infantry, from $12 to $16 per month.

Mr. Sheffield has presented two petitions from the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, in favor of securing the penalty of the materials used in combating the fruit-tree insect foes of fruits, flowers and vegetables, and the other favoring the Lafean apple package bill. He has also presented teh petitions of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Rhode Island, favoring the Johnson bill (Senate 1621) to prevent liquor selling in Hawaii, the Park-Simms bill prohibiting the telegraphing of race gambling bets, and the McCumber-Tirrell bill (Senate 2840) against liquor selling in ships and buildings of the United States.

Senator Wetmore has presented to Congress a petition from the Kent County Chapter of the Rhode Island Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, protesting against any legislation for the abolition of the bureau of information in connection with the federal immigration service.

NEW TRIAL IN BAILEY CASE.

Ordered by Judge Baker Unless Reduction of Damages to $3,000 is Accepted.

Judge Baker has handed down a decision in the case of Elizabeth E. Underwood et al. vs. The Old Colony Street Railway Company, in which he decides that the verdict for $5,000 in favor of plaintiffs, rendered by the jury after the case was tried here in the superior court last June, was excessive. The case involves the death of William Bailey, a Middletown boy, who while driving one of his father's teams in the town road in that town was struck by a car of the defendant company in being driven past it. Bailey died, which occurred some time afterwards, was a result of the injuries sustained in that accident.

The case was tried before Judge Baker and the verdict was for $5,000 damages. The defendant moved for a new trial on the grounds that the verdict was against the evidence, that Louis Steyon, one of the jurors, was guilty of such misconduct as to entitle the defendant to a new trial, and that the damages were excessive.

In the decision Judge Baker says that after over the questions of liability the defendant was unsuccessful. Regarding the alleged misconduct of juror Steyon, he dwells at length on the various affidavits made for the defendant in the motion for a new trial. While he was reluctant in passing the Steyon matter, he did not disturb the verdict on that ground.

Regarding damages Justice Baker says: "On the question of damages the jury disregarded the instructions of the court, and it is difficult to understand how they could have found a verdict for so large an amount. In my judgment it is boldly and grossly excessive."

He takes up at length the expectancy of life of a man 86 years ago and in his concluding paragraph says: "Unless there for the plaintiffs within 10 days of the filing hereof remit in writing all of the verdict in excess of $3,000 the defendant's motion for a new trial will be granted."

St. Joseph's report No. 6: Number of parishioners, 5,000; number of marriages, 50; number of baptisms, 152; first communions, 93; number performing their Easter duties, 1,624.

Father Mahon congratulated his people on the good report he was able to make for a year which was not the best financially which could be looked for in the parish, and thanked those who had done their part to make such a good showing. The report indicated that there is available for use for the new church about $25,000, and some think a start should be made on the new structure. Perhaps a start would be made; he wouldn't not say definitely one way or the other. He would say, however, that the original plans called for a building to cost $100,000 and he thought it now these plans would be carried out for anything like that figure, it was a question if the bare walls and roof would not cost that. To carry out such plans would leave the parish with a heavy debt, one which reminded him of the heavy burden of St. Mary's parish in the past, and one he would not care to see placed upon the parish. It might be possible to have modifications of these plans made, so that the structure could be erected at much less cost, and within a figure which would justify the continuing of the work with the cash now in hand.

He spoke of the fact that the parish will this year observe its silver anniversary as it will be 25 years of age. He did not need to call attention to what the parish had done in that time. It was shown as well to his hearers as to him. It seemed, however, that some note should be taken of this anniversary.

Father Mahon spoke at some length on many matters of general interest to the parish and its work.

PORTSMOUTH.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Miss Margaret B. Shelley of the Moses Brown School is visiting her uncle, Mr. Isaac B. Macomber, and family.

Elmer C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Buggies of "Lehigh" died suddenly Saturday morning at 7 a. m. of sickness of 3 hours. He was at Newport Wednesday and was taken sick Thursday. He had not been well for some years, and some three or more years ago his heart was pronounced diseased and there seemed little chance for him. A change of medicine and treatment apparently to have a wonderful effect and he had been improving so rapidly for a long time that a case was expected. When his death was announced there was a most general feeling that it must necessarily be so. He was nearly 16 years of age, amiable and liked by all his associates.

The late Mrs. John T. Gardner was a member of the Kings Daughters, and her long illness prevented her from attending the meetings in recent years. Of this and from personal acquaintance, a Mail correspondent writes: "Some of the ladies were present at the funeral as a short meeting. BOYS' CLUB BEATEN.

Father Mathew Takes Fall River Team into Camp.

Calvert, After an Automobile Ride, Had the Speed to Defeat St. George's.

Saturday evening the Father Mathew basket ball team took into camp the fast Boys' Club team of Fall River by a score of 32 to 16, the game being the most exciting at this hall this season. The two teams were evenly matched and this was enough to bring out a crowd which taxed the capacity of the hall.

The game had been in progress about nine minutes when Reader of the Fall River team dropped in a neat basket. This was soon followed by one from the centre of the floor by W. Sullivan. The same player soon made another, putting the "Tabs" in the lead. The "Tabs" then ran the score up to 20 to 4, but the visitors took this lead and finally led by a score of 11 to 10. There was some excitement at this period. Fitzsimmons slipped in a beauty just as time was up for the first half, putting the "Tabs" in the lead 12 to 11. The second half was a bitter rough, contrary with the first. "Cut Eye" Barnes had lost sight on the basket, putting five goals to his credit.

Fitzsimmons at centre is a second Ed Walsh of the Troy team, and can get from one end of the hall to the other in three or four strides. He was all over the floor at all times, and his jumping at centre was the best seen for a long time. His jumping enabled the "Tabs" to work their signals [illegible] time again. The shooting and blocking of the "Tabs" backs was a feature. Jerry Sullivan had a hard man against him and did not seem to have luck in his shooting. Martin was covered from the start and he did by Reader, but succeeded in breaking away long enough to score three baskets. For the visitors Dick McGraw was a whole team, making 14 of his team's total score of 16. He made six field baskets and shot two foul goals.

The Fall River boys were not without some cheering, as they had with them about 50 rooters, among them about 15 of the fair sex. They occupied seats on the platform and did all in their power to help Fall River win. They had horns, bells and other noisemaking devices and certainly made enough noise to suit any one. One much remarked that the only thing he could compare the game with was an East Boston-Naval Reserves game. Both teams were pleased with the way both officials handled the game. Rocke as usual was the referee for the "Tabs" and Cosgrove, an old Fall River player, for the visitors. The line-up is as follows:

Father Mathews.		Boys' Club
Martin, l. f.		r. b., Reader
Sullivan, r. f.		l. b., Booth
Fitzsimmons, c.		c., Martin
Barnes, r. g.		l. g., Dick McGraw

Score—Father Mathews 32, Fall River 16. Baskets—Martin 3, Fitzsimmons 4, Barnes 5, W. Sullivan 4, D. McGraw 6, Reader, Fitz. Goals—McGraw 2. Referees—Rocke and Cosgrove. Timer—John P. Sullivan. Scorer—John J. Harrington. Time—Two 20-minute halves.

There ought to be the real thing in basket ball at the armory when the Trenton team of the Eastern League, with Harry Hough, "the king of basket ball," on the firing line, appears. There are other good players from which the rest of the team will be made up, including Keefe, Mayham, Hahn, Clark, Cole and Marshall. The visitors are second in the race for the championship, Reading being first with 11 won and 5 lost, for .647, and Trenton second with 13 won and 6 lost, for .684, so that it will be seen that they are practically up with the leaders.

The Eastern League, like the Hudson River League, and in fact the teams in New Jersey and Pennsylvania generally, follows the Reach rules, and scoots from a dribble. The visitors desire the first game played according to these rules, and it will be. It has been believed for some time that this might to give a fast and open game, since it will hold the backs, or representatives of the backs, around the other basked and prevent the bunching of players. It also allows pretty fast work on the floor in dribbling. In this line Hough is considered a star and pretty work may be looked for from him. The spectators naturally will be anxious to see how the home team will do under the new scoring conditions, and there should be a good deal of interest in the first game.

The line-up of the visitors is given as follows: Hough, l. f.; Hahn, r. f.; Mayham, c.; Clark, l. b.; Cooper, r. b.

The basket ball team of the Calvert School went to St. George's School in style, Saturday evening, an automobile having been furnished for the purpose. The automobile ride must have given the Calvert boys the speed, for they had it on the St. George's team, which did not have such a ride, to the tune of two to one—or, to be more exact, 44 to 22.

The score shows that both teams were playing basket ball rather than trying to fight, and this is further borne out by the fact that no fouls were called. It is a pleasure to report such a game, in which the participants try to play basket ball, win or lose. In this sport the greater credit for a clean game really goes to the losers, who are tempted, being behind, to do something contrary to the spirit of the game.

For the winners the distinguishing feature was the team work; it was a case of everyone trying for the success of the team and not for individual honors and that is the game which counts for a win. St. George's also put up a good game. Good-field doing the star work. The sides:

Calvert	St. George's
Reigal, l. f.	r. f., Duryea
Dennison, r. f.	l. f., Greene
Carry, c.	c., Munn
Cooper, l. g.	r. g., Goodfield
Edwards, r. g.	l. g., Powell

Score—Calvert 44, St. George's 22. Baskets—Reigal 7, Dennison 8, Carry 3, Cooper 2, Edwards 2, Powell 2, Goodfield 4, Munn 2, Duryea 2.

POLICE CASES.

Twenty-six in Sunday lice prisoners. For one, Victor Gigue, the police have waited for two years. He was engaged in the chicken appropriation act, and his two brothers were long since sentenced but Victor was a victor as far as the police were concerned until last Saturday, when he took a chance among the crowd which visited Tiverton to get a drink. Then the police went on him, and he was on his way to Taunton even after breaking bail, for he pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three months in the Providence County jail and a fine of $20.

Two prisoners were charged with assault and each was fined $10 and costs. One paid and the other went to Taunton in default. One drunk paid $5 and costs and a drunk another charge paid $2 and costs. The town did well financially for a visit.

One idle person should not safely. Ten boys were given a talk by the judge on the matter of making a nuisance of themselves to certain persons. They were given another chance but will be under surveillance.

This morning a man over 50 years of age was sent to the state workhouse for six months on a charge of being a common drunkard.
